ADA

The ADA considers sales offices are a place of public accommodation. MHRV requires exhibitors to make available an area where buyers with disabilities may obtain information (brochures, photos, etc.) and transact the purchase of a unit.

MHRV encourages exhibitors to voluntarily provide at least a minimal level of access to model homes and RVs to potential buyers with disabilities. For example, a exhibitor could provide physical access (via ramp or lift) to the primary level of one or several display models and make photographs of less accessible areas of the unit as well of other models available to the customer.

Auxiliary aids are available through the facility management. Customer inquiries for auxiliary aids should be directed to the show office.

Alternative formats for MHRV sponsored seminars are available. Show attendees wishing seminars in alternative format are asked to contact the show office one hour prior to the seminar.
